Trainers:	Philipp Gramlich
Number of participants:	Max. 12
This seminar can be tailored to a female-only or mixed audience.

Leadership has undergone changes- in parallel with changes to our work environments. Flatter hierarchies, project work in a matrix structure and more rapid changes of assignments, locations and colleagues are but some of the new challenges we all face. Interpersonal skills become ever more important when leading a team or a project: for motivation, conflict resolution or work delegation.

Depending on the trainer and the individual group, different aspects of this highly important skill set will be emphasized. Examples for topics that are often requested:

- Gender-specific communication: sometimes it's like learning a new language!
- How to say no: timing, respect, consequence.
- Leading a diverse team: age, gender, cultural background... We're all individuals and so are our teams. Can we find a leadership style that fits them all and is this even desirable.
